

The Facts of Hell

What is it? Where is it?

We are told that it is hot and full of torment.

I really didn't begin get a grasp of the reality of it until I pondered the implications of a scientific study that meticulously weighed people's body who were on the brink of death. They found that at the moment that the soul left the body, the body consistently became lighter by a fraction of an ounce! This says clearly that the soul has weight!!!

Revelations 9:11 " And they had as king over them the angel of the bottomless pit, whose name in Hebrew is Abaddon, but in Greek he has the name Apollyon."

Redeemed souls would be attracted upwards, against gravity towards the voice of their beloved Redeemer.

But the souls of those without a relationship to the Redeemer, would be helplessly pulled downwards by gravity. Walls and floors are no barriers because all matter has been left behind with the body. It falls slowly but surely though all the floors of the hospital, until it comes to the cold concrete basement floor, and then without pause, just keeps sinking.....

The Facts That We Know

Bottomless pit? Surely that is a physical absurdity!

Not really. When the soul leaves the body on the surface of the earth, it has 6,378 km or 3958.7 miles to reach the theoretical physical center of the globe. But at that center point there would be no gravitational pull at all since all the attracting matter would be above, not below. And there is no physical floor to place a foot upon (if the soul had one). Everything there is molten solids, or spirit. Gases are compressed into metallic solids too. The physical pressures are beyond imagination or any meaningful measurement. But the likely outcome would be some sort of variable elliptical orbit around the theoretical bottom of the gravity well. There is no real bottom, since it just starts to curve up towards the other side of the earth.

There is no way to measure the temperature at the Earth's core directly. We know from mines and drill holes that, near the surface of the Earth, the temperature increases by about 1 degree Fahrenheit for every 60 feet in depth. If this temperature increase continued to the center of the Earth, the Earth's core would be 100,000 degrees Celsius!

It might be, but nobody believes the Earth is that hot; the temperature increase must slow down with depth and the core is probably about 3000 to 5000 degrees Celsius.

This estimate of the temperature is derived from theoretical modeling and laboratory experiments. This work is very difficult (and speculative) since nobody can reproduce in a laboratory the high temperatures and pressures that exist in the core. Also it is not known exactly what the core is made of, so all their theories may be worthless!!

The extremely deep gold mines in South Africa are around two miles down, and already the rocks are too hot to touch. They keep blasting cooled air into the mine, but even so the miners sweat profusely. It is as hot as hell down there!!

And the walls of the mine are prone to explosive exfoliation caused by the great pressures involved.. Pieces will just fly off the walls with such great force that miners are hurt or killed!

And below this, it just keeps getting hotter. All the rocks of the continent FLOAT on the rocks that are deeper, because the deeper rocks are even heavier. The measurements of scientists tell us that the core of our planet is made of mostly molten iron and nickel. But gold will be there also because it is twice as heavy as lead!! Maybe gold is not so rare after all? But gold is not shiny down there, because there is no light -or eyes.

Another extremely heavy metal down there is Uranium. It cannot explode because it is part of a mixture with many other rocks and minerals, and the unstable isotopes have not been separated out. But it still makes heat.... and more heat..

What Condition is the Descending Lost Soul In?

The soul retains consciousness, but has lost the ability to sleep which was mediated by the physical brain. Why is that important? Sleep is mysterious blessing from God that sleep scientists are still trying to understand. From what I have read, it is a way to get the struggles of the conscious mind out of the way so that the soul can bask in the healing primal love of God that is known by those in the womb.

Apparently, without sleep a person gradually becomes insane.

Also intelligence is involved since with prolonged sleep deprivation, people wander in a dopey half-awake state. It is my view that while we sleep God has arranged that our remaining intelligence after the fall is swept into two piles. One third is oblivion, while two thirds of our hours enjoy a 30% boost in native intelligence and alertness.

So, without sleep the IQ would be greatly reduced.

Many people comfort themselves about the afterlife by confirming to themselves that it will just be a sleep-like oblivion. But oblivion takes a functioning brain to create. And the lost soul has left that behind with the rest of the body. There can be no comfortable oblivion.

There is no mouth, or stomach, so there cannot be any eating or drinking, and after the first layers underground there is no water anyways. There certainly are no snacks for the journey.

There are no physical eyes, and underground in the solid rock, they would do no good anyhow!. There is no light. There are no ears, or mouth so no speaking or listening can occur.

There might be non-physical replacements for the lost senses. There is no way to tell. One possibility is the imagination with its memories from its life on the faraway surface to draw upon.

One cannot detect or fellowship with other humans, but the lost soul is still not quite alone. Hell was not made for humans, it was made to the holding place for the fallen angels . And they are there.

Millions of them. They hate people. And they are quite able communicate these plentiful emotions. We know this because the ones that manage to get to living people on the surface work that way. They mock and despise all people because they had a chance to be saved and escape this endless torment, but foolishly scorned it.

There is much more that could be said, but it really would be a lost cause.....
